Illene and Glea Fleming feel that there are more graves in this cemetery hiding under all the briars and nettles.

The cemetery was last used in 1929. It is overgrown with weeds and trees. Stones are down and broken. It is located one half mile south of the center of town, left hand side, over the bank. A railroad runs in front of the graves. There are stone stairs in the front of the Cemetery, beautiful hand carved stones and crosses. Some graves are marked with slabs of wood and carved.
